

The Best of

So long – farewell...

It's been great fun doing the newsletter, a lot of hard work, but fun nevertheless. We've built up a loyal following – and we're very grateful for the wonderful feedback, ideas and submissions. And no, this isn't a spiel to say we're ending it, but we are losing one of our most popular contributors. John Macgowan and his wife Charmaine have sold their house and will be moving back to Western Australia. Something they have been trying to do for some time, but we kept hoping it would be later rather than sooner. This article will be the last he pens for the Men's Shed, and they more than anyone will miss him most. If you are on the Men's Shed mailing list, you would know that his sly wit is not confined to this newsletter – in fact – it was because of his funny emails that we approached him and put pressure on him to give us something when he could. It's been a fun ride, and although one or two people took things a little too seriously at times (not naming names – but you know what we mean!), John has kept the Men's Shed and the group's aims to the fore, highlighting the great work they are doing in the cause of men's health and wellbeing. So whilst the work will go on, you may have to put up with my ramblings in order to keep abreast of what mad plan they have hatched.

John will miss us too, and has promised that he may even become a Foreign Correspondent, and send the occasional missive from the west, thereby reinforcing the idea that WA is a breed apart – and they do things differently there...

Thank you John – you know how much we have enjoyed your input, and we sincerely wish you and Charmaine all the best for your future.

Congratulations!

Our congratulations must go to MP Rebekha Sharkie who regained the seat of Mayo last Saturday, after having to resign over the citizenship kerfuffle. Rebekha has been a hard worker for her constituents – whether they held her views or not – and was rewarded with an overwhelming majority vote. She has spent some time in Mt Pleasant, giving support in particular to the Men's Shed and we wish her all the best for the remainder of her tenure, and good luck in the next federal election.

As part of the Angaston Railway Station precinct upgrade we're seeking expressions of interest for potential usage to help guide the fit out and activation of the building in the near future.

If you have an idea for potential usage of this space we would love to hear from you! Suitable for commercial, community or a mix of both; or more than one business entity together. These submissions will help guide the fit out and enable activation of the building and surrounding Angaston Railway Station precinct upgrade.

Please visit The Barossa Council website – Council / News & Media / Angaston Railway Station Building EOI.

Your thoughts?

Here's a small picture of our (demolished) Railway Station. It was located where the Atrium is. As the Talunga Park plan includes an administration building, it might be nice if it was built in the style of the old Railway Station. Thoughts?

SALA Mt Pleasant - Farm to Market Town

SALA Mount Pleasant 2018 will showcase an artist's palette of mediums including watercolour, oils, acrylics, pastels, ink and pencil, tapestry, floral sculpture, photography, glass jewellery and metal artwork. The theme 'Farm to Market Town' is in keeping with one of the SALA venues in the district - the Mount Pleasant Wisteria Atrium and its association with the Farmers Market.

This year, SALA Mount Pleasant, under the auspices of the Mount Pleasant Progress Association Inc., has drawn together a group of talented artists from in and around the town, all working towards a common theme. We are privileged to exhibit the creative work of artists Joe Dennis, Sandra Keatley, Isobel Corbally, Tricia and Andrew Hood, Robyn Mitchell, Terese Stephens, Eileen McAllister, Marissa Summersides, Eugene Blackman, two young artists Chloe Gillespie and Scott Hegarty and the Spencer family comprising Linda, Linda Snr. and Barrie.

Presenting on Saturdays from 8:00am to 1:00pm and Sundays from 2:00pm to 4:00pm, the artistic creations will provide a splendid display in the Wisteria Atrium, the walls of which will overflow with the diverse and creative artwork of sketchers, painters, weavers, photographers and sculptors surrounding a floral art centrepiece by Market Assistant Manager, Terese Stephens.

Those attending the Mount Pleasant Farmers Market on Saturday morning will be treated with a cascade of artistic masterpieces while enjoying their morning coffee or Devonshire tea or a full Farmer's Breakfast.

On Saturdays between 10:00am and 12noon, several artists have generously volunteered to demonstrate their artistic talent and share with budding artists some 'tricks of the trade' that goes into producing those works of art. While Sunday's opening times do not coincide with the Market café, coffee, tea and scones prepared by volunteers will be available.

Open days and times:

Saturday 11, 18 & 25 August - 8.00am to 1.00pm
 Sunday 12, 19 & 26 August - 2.00pm to 4.00pm

All work displayed at SALA Mount Pleasant will be for sale.

In a shift to include and combine artists from where the Southern Barossa joins the Adelaide Hills, the SALA Torrens Valley Art Trail has been initiated. This incorporation of artists brings together the SALA venues of Top of the Torrens Birdwood, Mount Pleasant Wisteria Atrium, Holmes Studio Burns Road and the Springton Gallery.

Men's Shed-ding

or rounding up
the usual suspects

The Mount Pleasant Men's Shed has many facets. At this time our published opening times are Monday and Wednesday mornings from 09:00am to 12:00 noon although these times vary depending on the conversations at the time.

Our project scribe and one-time snag cooker, Bill Bartsch, produces the Mount Pleasant Men's Shed Activity Calendar which is updated on a regular basis. The Activity Calendar lists the projects underway at the time of posting, the meeting place and time of the project and directions, if required. For example:

I note on the above that 'wives etc' were not welcome to on the 'dog and bone'! George has a pile of orders on his chopping block that have to be filled and the call goes out to 'round up the usual subjects'.

This time of the year when there is frost on the ground and a chill in the air, the calls come in for wood – firewood - quality firewood, and lots of it. Firewood is the Mount Pleasant Men's Shed main source of revenue to pay those persistent bills that keep arriving. George watches the weather patterns on the ABC News, picks the best day, heads over to Barr(ie)'s place to discuss the plan while playing pool and lowering the level in a bottle of red. A decision is made and the call goes out to the usual suspects, and our team of Lumberjacks meet early in the morning at the Men's Shed, stamping the frosty earth, steamy breaths cloud the air, form a convoy and head out to cut some wood.

Here I should point out that the skill of cutting and splitting large fallen red gum trees into pieces of firewood that will fit into a regular wood heater, is an art that can only be attained with practice.

Out on the job Lumberjack George rules with an iron hand, yet with the bargaining skill of a conman. Meal breaks are essential so that the Mount Pleasant Men's Shed Wood Gatherers can boil the billy, or in these more modern times bring out the thermos, sit on a stump, exchange a biscuit or a piece of cake, courtesy of Yvonne, and tell outrageous stories of how they did it 'back in the day'.

This is the time when we hear the mischief John Bowd got up to when he moved to South Australia, Don Barrett tell yarns of his time as a copper chasing bushrangers across outback SA and George recalls some of those weekend coach runs to the snow, 'back in the day'. Some of the stories that Les Fisher tells of his younger days when attending a PMG linesman training down at Rostrever and would bring a young nurse, Kath, up to Mount Pleasant for a woolshed dance then out to Rum Jungle for a couple of beers, bring back our own memories.

Skilled wood gathers are scarce however the Mount Pleasant Men's Shed is overwhelmed with certified Lumberjacks. Our chainsaw team of George (OBE), treasurer, builder and architect John, intrepid 4WD enthusiast Roger, Men's Health devotee Bob and all-rounder Les (trades in his metal detector for a chainsaw), get down and carve up the fallen timber into manageable lengths where it is carried to the splitting team.

The wood splitting team are pros at their trade. Wearer of the tartan Murray, secretary and coach driver Don, another of our skilled carpenters Barry, President and vigneron Colin, all-rounder Les, (minus metal detector and chainsaw), all working in unison they turn the sawn logs in firewood ready for sale. The wood splitter is positioned not too far from the chainsaws, far enough to miss the clouds of sawdust and cacophony of noise and still close enough to a trailer for easy loading – a task in itself.

The splitting team load the sawn wood onto the splitter, set the hydraulic ram in motion and the timber is split, repositioned, split to a manageable size for the loaders to pack into the trailers. Then again, and again, and again until at last senior Lumberjack George calls for smoko or the trailer is full – whatever comes first. Property owner and supplier of the wood Rod, ambles over with his arm in a sling to assist with smoko.

I have been out with the wood-gatherers a number of times mostly on the loading team. Our draftsman Brian sets out to Rum Jungle for a couple of beers, bring back our own memories.

aside his HB drawing pencils and Dave the plumber leaves his poly-pipe extractor at home and, with a system that would put Henry Ford's assembly line to shame, transfer the firewood from the splitter to the trailer. Although, I do admit that most of my firewood duties are spent listening to the outlandish stories over smoko and assisting LG with deliveries.

I took a trip with LG on a wood delivery this week, down through the country lanes of Birdwood to stack a tonne of firewood in the woodshed of a regular customer. She was very appreciative of the quality of the firewood and went to great lengths to congratulate our OBE Lumberjack. LG kept up the conversation for the next 20 minutes while I unloaded the trailer, stacked the wood, cleaned out the chips and put them in a bag, then as I staggered to the ute and collapsed on the back seat, LG finished his tête à tête with the grateful customer and we drove back to Mount Pleasant. Lumberjack George did wake me when we arrived back in Hocknull Place and helped me into my car for the drive home.

However, for every downside there is an upside as another three hundred bucks has been secreted into the bank account to ensure that the MPMS exists for another month or two. Also on the upside our MPMS carried out a good Samaritan project last week when the Lumberjack team descended on the property of local community elder Babs, and removed a huge tree that had fallen very close to her house in fact a part of the gutter was damaged. Imagine Babs' surprise when she arrived home from an outing, the tree was removed and heaped into a huge pile ready to be disposed of. As JB's big green JD was not available, all-rounder Les' little white 4WD came to the rescue easily dragging the logs to the woodpile. Another successful project completed by the Mounted Shedders. Play it again Sam - errr George!

Writer's Workshop

At the end of July Sue and I made the trek down to Naracoorte to attend the Kanawinka Writer's Workshop. It was very intense, we learned a lot, and we met a lot of really interesting people. I came away with a number of ideas for upcoming projects and both of us were inspired by the tales of determination and doggedness these authors showed in order to tell their stories. A representative from Wakefield Press was in attendance, as well as printers who helped us understand the printing and publication process. There were many books for sale – which were extremely tempting, and if you are interested in South Australian history, you can't go past the Wakefield Press.

We heard Antony Laube from the State Library who spoke on 'The treasures of Trove' and gave great hints about searching on this wonderful resource. Trove is a 'go-to' place for anyone wanting that extra bit of information or possible photograph. Marion Hextall spoke on other valuable online sources, reminding we researchers of places to visit for that extra snippet. All in all the weekend reminded us of what we can achieve, and gave clues on how to present our research in a manner that would be appealing to all.

The writers who spoke during the workshops were Rosalie Triolo (Senior Lecturer at Monash University – History & History of Education), Lainie Anderson (Journalist – who is writing a book about the Smith Brothers and their ground breaking 1919 flight), Kristen Weidenbach (Growing up Moonta), Liz Harfull (The Australian Blue Ribbon Cookbook) and Judith Murdoch (author of 11 local history books, and who taught me Social Studies!). Judith was also presented with the South Australian Regional Historian for 2018 Award by Pauline Cockrill, Community History Officer from History Trust of SA.

What stood out to me about the weekend of Writer's Workshop was that many people self-publish, as I have, and often that is the only way to produce a product that will look just as you want!

Pete's Poem

CFS (Can't Find Smoke – Cut Fresh Sandwiches)

How long ago it seems to be, a workmate had a word with me,
Said what good thing it would be, to join the C.F.S.

You get to learn a lot of stuff, to help you if the job gets tough,

We recruit all year to get enough, to join the C.F.S.

AND, you get to ride the big white truck,

and make things right, with a little luck,

When some-one's life has come unstuck, they need their C.F.S.

So I pulled some yellow trousers on, and strapped a helmet on my scone,

And soon my spare time all was gone... I'd joined the C.F.S.

They issued me a pager, tiny, in a case to keep it bright and shiny, Otherwise, it could get grimy, at work with C.F.S.

And a uniform to turn the Lady's heads, but mostly they're snug in their beds,

While we're out in the cold instead, playing at C.F.S.

None-the-less, it can be jolly, saving innocents from others',

And thus, we're never melancholy, they love their C.F.S.

SO... If you have some time to spare, are predisposed to do your share,

We always welcome new "Vollies" there, at your local C.F.S.

In readiness for the 2018 SALA festival in August, three Adelaide Hills & Barossa Community Groups have teamed together with an Open Studio to form the inaugural TORRENS VALLEY ART TRAIL. The trail, which covers an 18km stretch between Birdwood in the Adelaide Hills and Springton on the south-eastern perimeter of the Barossa Valley, will present art lovers with the diverse works of around 40 artists. The exhibitions and venues include:

A fantastic night with a huge turnout for our Christmas in July event. Roasts and vegies were again on the menu – finishing with Genevieve’s wonderful (and very popular) Christmas Pudding. Lots of convivial conversation and ripping raffle prizes ensured everyone left well satisfied. The next one is set to be a Curry Night – something to look out for! In the meantime, after purchasing another stove and oven for the Pavilion Kitchen, the group is looking for some worthy projects to help fund. HUTT ST CENTRE

WALK A MILE IN MY BOOTS

STEP UP FOR SOUTH AUSTRALIA'S HOMELESS

ADELAIDE

FRIDAY 10 AUGUST

Come together with friends, families, and colleagues to walk a mile in the boots of a person facing homelessness in South Australia; by walking one mile on a cold, winter's morning.

Hutt St Centre's annual fundraising event, Walk a Mile in My Boots, provides South Australian's the opportunity to show their support for people experiencing homelessness. Join us during National Homelessness Week to show that homelessness is an important issue to you, and that no person should feel like they are walking alone.

When you walk with us, you become one of the many voices that says no one in our community should be without a safe, secure home.

When you fundraise, you ensure people experiencing homelessness can access vital services that allow them to rebuild their lives.
