

Editor's Report: Welcome to the new local Tungkillo newsletter.

As we begin a new year, we would like to inform everyone that the Tungkillo Gazette has new editors and a new name, Tungkillo Times. We would like to sincerely thank the previous editors for their hard work and diligence over their stint with the Tungkillo Gazette. With a new beginning and a new outlook, we hope the community will like the change. We, at the Tungkillo Times would like to invite anyone to submit any information, even if it is an advertisement to the email address provided.

The committee members of the Tungkillo Progress Club would like to wish that everyone has a lovely Christmas with family and friends and that Father Christmas was able to grant the children their wishes. We also hoped that you had a lovely New Year with family and friends and wish you all the very best for 2024.

The Tungkillo Progress Club Inc has had a busy 2023 with new happenings up at the community hall on Brinkworth Road Tungkillo. Our biggest event would have to be the Twilight Markets- this has been such an enormous success that it will continue in Feb and March of this year. The market was only going to happen in daylight savings time and will hopefully continue when daylight savings begins again in October 2024.

The preserving day was another immense success with opportunities for more workshops in the next few months as we have had great interest in more. On the preserving day, a survey was conducted to find out what people would like to see happen up at the hall. We are looking at cupcake decorating early this year with an interest in doing some type of cooking or decorating for the children in school holidays. A gardening workshop/talk has also been suggested and it would be interesting to get something happening up at the hall.

Dance and exercise classes was also mentioned in the survey, so if anyone in the community knows of someone that would be interested in doing classes at the hall, please contact the Tungkillo Times via email and we will pass on the information at the next available meeting. Names will be kept confidential if people wish.

Our native edible community garden is up and running with many foods that have started to flower and produce fruit for anyone to try, but hopefully the birds don't get it before you do. There is always room for more great ideas, and everyone is welcome to have a look, feel, taste and even help the small army of volunteers at the working bees who are passionate about having the garden blooming for our town/community. More planning around the tennis court area is on the agenda to expand our native community food garden. This garden was started from a $1000 grant through Australia Post from a like-minded community member who has the foresight for a better community.

Anyone is more than welcome to come and sit in at any meeting if you wish to find out what is happening in the town. Meetings usually occur on the first Monday of the month at 7pm at the Tungkillo Soldiers Memorial Hall on Brinkworth Road, Tungkillo.

Best Regards from the President Mandy and the new editors Christine and Sue.

TUNGKILLO CHRISTMAS

MARKET PARTY

TWILIGHT CHRISTMAS MARKET

On behalf of the Tungkillo Progress Committee, I would sincerely like to thank everyone that helped on the night to make our Christmas market a success.

Stall holders had an amazing night with lots of interaction and great feedback.

With a surprise visit from the man in the red suit that resides at the North Pole, a delightful reaction from all that were there on the night had special meaning to all, and he had a very special helper from a lovely girl called Zara.

Laura who coordinated the colouring-in competition was wonderful with each child receiving a thank you gift on the night. The children did a magnificent job with the colouring competition so thanks again to those children that put entries in.

Mandy did an amazing job with the BBQ and was helped along with Lawrie and Sue.

Anne, Christine and Sue happily sold raffle tickets, a job well done, and all tickets drawn that same night. A huge thank you to all that donated gifts for these raffles.

On The Edge carollers entertained us with their beautiful voices, wow how lovely they were so many thanks to you all.

Victoria entertained us with her ukelele as always, an uplifting performance well done.

Australian Native finger lime (Citrus Australasica)

This unique Australian native has 6 species that is part of the native citrus family, the most well-known and cultivated species being the finger lime. This native bushfood is also known as the caviar of the bush. The Australian finger lime is a thorny understory shrub or can grow as a small tree. Finger limes comes in different attractive colours ranging from a yellow/greenish to pale pink and crimson. They are traditional found in sub-tropical rainforest of Northern NSW and Southeast QLD but seem to grow well here in Tungkillo. Fruit used to grow in the wild in the eastern states, but with settlers arriving along with deforestation and farming it has almost destroyed the entire species. Today finger limes are primarily grown in Australia, it has been recorded that over 50% of Australian harvest is exported to Asia and Europe with the rest being sold in Australia. Fruit is also grown in selected regions in the USA.

Finger limes thrive in dapple light as well as full sun. Plant in well-draining soil, mulch in spring and keep your ground moist. Protect from hard frost, prevailing hot/dry and cold winds, they can withstand light frost. When grown in cooler climates it should bring more colour to the fruit.

Trees can take many years to produce any fruit so please be patient, but the average is between 3-6 years in right conditions, the fruit starts off small and should get to size within 3 years of fruiting. Native finger limes need to be pollinated to produce any fruit, this is best done by native bees or honeybees. If you see that your tree has many flowers and no fruit pollination is not occurring, and this can be rectified by pollinating yourself using a small clean/sterilised paint brush.

Pruning native finger limes encourages new growth in the bush/tree, it is important to remove any dead or damaged branches, opening up the tree also gives easier access to harvest.

Native finger limes are utilized as a fresh garnish and can be incorporated into both raw and cooked foods. The limes can be sliced in half, gently squeezed, or scooped to extract the pearls. When bitten into these pearls they explode in your mouth leaving a tangy-tart -refreshed burst of flavour. These pearls also marry up very well with fresh oyster, fish and calamari. They are great for a garnish in drinks, salad and on desserts.

Native finger limes contain 3 times the vitamin C found in mandarins, are found be rich in potassium and folate. Finger limes will keep for 2-4 weeks, just wrap in gladwrap and store in your fridge, they can also be frozen for up to 12 months.

The first nation people of Australia used the finger lime as a medical aide to prevent illness and applied the pearls topically as an antiseptic.

Native finger lime and white chocolate cheesecake

This cheesecake is decadent with the richness of white chocolate with the added burst of the native lime caviar.

Base

1 pkt of butterscotch biscuits

125 g melted butter

Zest of 1 normal lime

Crumb biscuits until there are no lumps, add zest and butter, combine. Press firmly in a 23cm springform tin set-in fridge.

Filling

330ml thickened cream

¼ cup of icing (optional)

500g cream cheese, softened

Juice of 2 normal limes

180g white chocolate melted, 3 teaspoons gelatine dissolved in ¼ cup boiling water

Flesh of 3-4 native finger limes (caviar)

Whip the cream add icing sugar if you wish to form soft peaks. In a separate bowl beat cream cheese with the juice of normal limes. Add melted chocolate, beat until smooth. Fold in whipped cream and gelatine by hand or beaters set on low speed, finally add the native lime caviar. Pour over base and smooth down with spatula. Refrigerate for 3-4 hours until set.

Before serving add fancy whipped cream to top, place more finger lime caviar to top of cream.

Enjoy

Calthrop

This is a summer growing weed that is on the noxious weed list and is growing in the Tungkillo area. Also known as Bindii in other areas in Australia.

Calthrop is a prolific flat sprawling summer growing cover that comes up after summer rains in the warmer weather. Calthrop is a green fern like looking ground cover that can reach easily up to 2 meters in diameter from the crown, with many branches and fine hairs on the leaves. This plant has small yellow flowers that range from 5mm -8mm diameter, these flowers contain 5 petals. Along the stem of plant burrs will occur that can grow up to 1 cm with the sharp rigid spines growing to a length of approximately 6mm. These burrs can split into 5 sharp wedges segments with 2 spines on each segment. Reach on of these segments can contain up to 4 seed. Each plant may contain up to 1000 segments which may produce upwards to 20,000seeds per year.

The perfect habitat for the calthrop prefers warm temperatures with damp sandy soil, where there is little competition. Germination begins during the summer rains. This plant has an extensive root system that allows it to survive droughts and tolerant of some frost.

Calthrop plant with its spine and spikes has an impact with stock when eaten, which can harm the mouth and possibly the stomach and intestines. It is toxic to sheep and may present similar problems to our native fauna. Seeds are also carried in the sheep's wool, vehicle tyres, pushbikes, shoe etc. The spikes can easily penetrate human flesh causing a painful discomfort. Painful if getting between your pets' toes and become lodge in their fur also. The spikes will also easily puncture bike tyres.

Physical removal is the best way to control this noxious weed. Remove the whole plant including its roots, from the soil – therefore reducing the above ground plant mass – place in a plastic bag, tie up and dispose it in your waste bin. To reduce impact in the future of more seedlings reappearing either get a paint roller and back and forwards of the impacted area to collect any seeds and burrs, place this also in a plastic bag tie up and depose in your waste bin. Remember to also get the roots of the plant. Also, you can phone the council if you see it on the roadside in the town, describe where you seen calthrop for example the street number, if in front of a building or house give the number. Council should come and remove plant if small the usually spray. Seeds can sit in the soil for many years waiting for the correct conditions to germinate.

AN IMPORTANT REMINDER FOR THE RESIDENTS OF TUNGKILLO

From My Garden

By Glynnis Burrows

Well, what strange weather we are having at the moment. It's a wonder that our garden plants and flowers are managing to cope with these constantly changing conditions. From day to day it's either hot, cold, windy and wet. One beautiful bulb I planted last year, which did not seem very happy where I planted it, has really surprised me this year.

Called the Sacred Lily of the Incas, Hymenocallis x festalis is also known as the Spider Lily, the Peruvian Daffodil and Ismene Lily. Despite its posh name it appears to be easy to grow and likes sandy soil and is currently growing among my Kangaroo Paws. Its white trumpet-shaped flowers have 6 narrow curling petals which appear on tall sturdy flower spikes. Flowering in Summer, the flowers come out before the dark green strappy leaves and they smell wonderful. Like many lilies, it is a clump-forming bulb and is a perennial.

Hymenocallis prefer a full sunny position in the garden. It stays evergreen in mild to warm climates but in cold climates will go dormant over Autumn and Winter, which is what happened to mine, making me convinced it was dead and gone. What a lovely surprise when it suddenly started throwing up green shoots.

According to Mr Google Hymenocallis is part of the Amaryllidaceae family and is native to Southern America through Mexico to Peru and Venezuela. Hymenocallis have exotic, fragrant blooms that will make an impact in your garden. They are also suitable for large pots and tubs. They look lovely grown in clumps especially in a sub-tropical and tropical garden. This makes for great cut flowers. If potted, they can be bought inside to enjoy when in flower. (Which means that after 3 – 4 years it can be lifted, separated and replanted in other spots in the garden.)

Height: 60cm, Width: 30cm. Plant in late Winter to early Spring. Plant in full sun, 15cm apart with the tip of the bulb at soil level. The soil needs to remain moist so water regularly during dry periods. Requires a dry dormant period in Autumn to flower regularly in Summer. Cut off spent flowers and remove any dead foliage as the plant dies back.

Kunzea Oil

Origin – Tasmania, Australia

Properties – Analgesic, antiseptic, anti-inflammatory, antioxidant.

Kunzea oil is also known as "White Cloud" or "Tick Bush".

Recipe 1:

Mix 3 – 5 drops of pure Kunzea oil with about 5ml of v-6 oil and for an extra punch, add 2 drops of black pepper oil.

Apply to sore muscles and joints.

Recipe 2:

Apply 1 - 2 drops of Kunzea oil to 12 drops of carrier oil, try grape seed oil, avocado oil, argan or jojoba oil.

Make sure to do a small test on the forearm first. Rub onto your face with a cotton makeup pad.

During this year I will be holding some DIY afternoons at the Tungkillio Hall. Dates and timings in the next Tungkillio Times.

Regards,

Kerry 0469 195 352
